The Additive Manufacturing Conference is evolving.

We have partnered with Formnext and AMT to bring the highest quality industrial 3D printing content to the U.S. The Formnext Forum will still have everything you have come to expect from the AMC – top-notch speakers, high-value attendees, ample networking opportunities, and an exhibit space full of the latest additive innovations.

Formnext Forum attendees will represent the entire industrial 3D printing ecosystem. The event will put your brand in front of active 3D printing users and those who are evaluating whether additive technology is right for their business.

Venue

Austin is a modern-day industry boom town. It's drawing top talent from across the country, and additive manufacturing is leading the charge. Home to several large 3D printing machine manufacturers and service bureaus, Austin is the ideal hub to talk about the future of additive.

As the birthplace of South by Southwest, world-famous concert venues, unbeatable BBQ and a vibrant nightlife, Austin is the perfect place to learn, network and explore the next stages of additive manufacturing.

Programming

The program includes technical sessions examining design, material, machinery and applications technology used in additive manufacturing.

Specific topics include:

- » Application success stories
- » Unique applications
- » Software
- » Connection with Design
- » Organizational Changes

Technical presenters include thought leaders from OEMs, leading additive manufacturing job shops, machinery suppliers and cutting-edge research outfits. The Formnext Forum gives you access to an engaged audience that is actively looking for new 3D printing solutions.

Exhibits

Attendees flock to the exhibit space to see and interact with the latest innovations in production 3D printing. Formnext Forum allows them to determine what their next steps in additive should be and connects them with solution providers that can get them started.
